Memories of Home Town Banking

Dave Revak, owner of Revak's Nursery and R & R Cleaning Contractors and Kathy Chlan, VP/Branch Manager

Dale Revak, owner and operator of Revak's Nursery and R & R Cleaning Contractors in Lakeville says New Market Bank brings back memories of home town banking many years ago. "I like New Market Bank because they are about community and they are a people's bank. They are big enough to give the services you need and care enough to know who you are, they know their people! They work to get things done."

IN FOCUS

We Value the Community

Bob Vogel
CEO/President

New Market was a growing farm community far removed from any metropolitan area when our bank was chartered in 1905. The bank, which I believe is now the 3rd oldest ongoing charter which originated in Scott and Dakota counties, was started just like many other community banks, to serve the local area's needs.

Although most things have changed since the turn of the century, one important thing which always has remained is the commitment to community that develops from being a locally owned community bank. That commitment naturally strengthens over time because both the bank and community become interconnected since they are dependent on each other to grow and prosper. It takes years, but when people at a bank and residents of a community work together it usually leads to a vibrant and thriving place to live and work.

So why is this synergy important to you as a customer? It's important because in everything we do we know without local customers we can not endure as we have in the past. As a community bank we are rooted in this area and therefore don't desire to "depart" for better opportunities, or consider doing things that would risk our reputation of honesty and integrity for short term gains. Our purpose is to be a permanent part of the community, just as we have been for the last century. That means the community (you) must be served reliably, because our future is dependent on how well we deliver that service.

Whether or not you already enjoy the experience of doing business with a community bank, we invite you to stop and visit any of our 4 locations in the New Market, Lakeville or Prior Lake area. And please always know our mission is to see that you and the community prosper, because it's the nature of why we are chartered to be here.

Protect yourself from Fraud and Identity Theft

New Market Bank is committed to assisting our customers in keeping their account and personal information confidential. Recently we have had customers relay to us a couple of identity theft scams that are circulating.

One situation involves con artists that are targeting seniors. They call pretending to be grandchildren that are traveling abroad, in trouble and in need of cash. They request money be sent immediately and plead with them to not tell anyone. To avoid this scam, always resist the pressure to act quickly. Protect yourself by verifying the information before sending out any money.

Another customer reported receiving a phone call from someone stating they were from the Bank and advising them that another bank was taking small amounts of funds out of their account. The caller asked for the customer's account number to verify the transactions. It is important that you never give out any information unless you have initiated the call.

Although we work hard every day to identify possible threats, maximum security is only possible with our customers help.

You can help yourself by:

- Not providing your social security number or credit card information over the phone unless you initiated the call and are familiar with the business
- Tearing or shredding all credit card receipts, bank statements and credit card offers before throwing them into the trash or recycling
- Never keeping your Social Security number in your wallet
- Protecting your bank and credit card Personal ID Numbers (PINs) and passwords by changing them occasionally.
- Not using your name, social security number or birth date as your PIN or password

Please visit our website www.newmarketbank.com to find out more useful information about how to prevent identity theft.
